THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1897.

The first round in the political fight in Greater New York has been fought, in connection with the meeting of the Demoeratic State committee; its action in ignoring the Chicago platform, and in nominating Alton B. Parker, a gold advocate and the candidate of Pavid B. Bill, for chief judge of the court of appeals. According to the press reports the committee was encouraged to take this course by Benator Jones of Arkaneas, chairman of the Democratic national committee. The State committee expelled Secretary Heavy D. Parroy for what it called treason, in advocating the election of Seth Low as mayor, in case the authorities of the parts platform faith and duty. Representatives of the faithful Democratic elements protested against the subversion of the party's national platform, but said their constituents would support the ticket. posite rather than trothful, and, in the present state of knowledge on the subject, the whole affairlooks to us like a preliminary victors for Seth Low.

It is a coor rule that will not work both ways. If the party magnates are to be permitted to ignore the doctrine and the supreme law of the organization, in order that they may torn that organization over to the men who betrayed it in 1896, there dependent Democrats to Greater New York Tamany program, and vote for Seth Low as a non-partisan. The position and condect of these trimming and treacherous leaders make that the logical thing to do Either the campaign in the State and city of New York is to be fought out on strictly national issues, because of the important effect that the elections there will exert upon political events in 1858 and 1900. terests of a gold conspiracy within the party, that should take the struggle completely out of the realm of partisan polities, and make it the duty of Democratic voters at once to give Tammany and treason a blistering rebuke, and to help secure to the city an bonest municipal ad ministration under an honorable, nonparties mayor.

In spite of the most intelligent and vie prous action on the part of the national and State health authorities, the yellow fever epidemic has secured such a hold in Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana that the prospects are strong for a bad time of It between now and frost. At least eleven of the suspected cases at Edwards, near Jackson, Mississippi, have developed into vellow fever, and it is undoubted that many more are to come. All these cases organised in one from Ocean Springs. The immediate result is a panic in Jackson A rigid quarantine has been declared against all points whatever public of the city. A policy of absolute non-intercourse will be enforced. About all the people who can leave the city, are doing so. No new cases are reported from Mobile, which is a favorable sign. Two new ones were discovered yesterday in New Orleans. The bealth board of Missis sippl has forbidden trains from infected places to stop within the State. The scare and the shotgun quarantine are sprending everywhere. The effect upon autumn besiness in the South will be se

We are told that Mr. Pintt has as sured the President of a danger that he would be the last man to ignore. If Seth Low should manage to capture the mayor would make him the logical Republican candidate for the Presidency in 1900. Consequently something must be done. Cornelius N. The Afridis were within 400 yards of the latter when a heavy British artiflery fire scattered them. Other British col are pressing forward, and it is probable that remaining posts and parrisons now will be safe for the time being. The mad Haddah Mullah still is preaching his holy war, and gathering tribesmen to the standand of revolt; but England now has about 60,000 disciplined troops with plenty of arillery in the region, and, if the rising continues to be confined to the bill tribes it is most probable that it can be handled and ultimately suppressed. The real danger lies in the possibility that Turkish and perhaps Russian influence at Cabul may induce Abdurrahman Khan to take a hand. In that event it would take a great many more troops, treasure and bloodshed to pacify the Aighan frontier.

Squandered the Guelph Fund.

Berlin, Sept. 16.—An immense sensation has been created here, and not only in Berlin, but also in the various German capitals and at Vienna, by the announcement on most reliable authority of the fact that Emperor William has appropriated and entirely squandered in personal extravagance what has until now been known as the Guelph fund.

The latter constitutes the private for time of the former reigning family of Hanover, the head of which is the present Duke of Cumberland, and which is a branch of the royal house of England. At the time when Hanover was seized by Prussia in 1886, it was expressly stipulated that

Consequently he charged the blind ex-King, who was at Vienna at the time, with intriguing to fortune would be held in trust by the timate heir until either the one or of the annexation of Banover by Prussia he made use of the interest of this fund for subsidicing newspapers, both at home and abroad, several Parisian dailies being among them. He himself described these papers as "reptiles," and the fund as the "Reptile Fund," although its official name was the Guelph fund, Guelph being the family name of the royal English house of Hanover, as: twas of Queen Victoria un-th: she martied Prince Albert, of Coburg. Old Emperor William never approved of this course of Bismarck, which he regardthat Emperor Frederick Wasonly prevented by his premature death from restoring the Guelph Funa to blind King George's son and beir, the present Duke of Cumberland, who, married to the youngest daughter of the King and Queen of Denmark, is brother-in law of the Dowager Czarina, of the Princess of Wales, and of the King of Greece. Just two years ago German and foreign newspapers were full of stories of the financial embarrassments of the Kaiser, of the woes of Berlin tradesmen, who were dignified compromises effected by the treas of a sadden, however, the Emperor branched off into an extraordinary fever of extravarance, and the festivities of the Court of Berlin during the following wir ter were on a scale of prodigal magnificence and luxury without precedent or parallel in Europe. Indeed, it was exti-mated at the time that the expenses of the royal household during that winter eason could not have been under severa sired thousand dollars a day.

The opinion was freely expressed at the ime that the Emperor had "struck off' somewhere. The oil well now turns out to been not the revenues, but the capital of the Guelph Fund, which, it is sed, has almost entirely disappeared if, indeed, there is anything at all left of it. It seems that this has been known for some time past by certain royal per springes, among others by the Prince of Wales, and accounts for the bitter and nosity displayed by the latter against his inperial neptiew.

CARLOTTA PASSING AWAY.

Captivity Near Brossels. Brussels, Sept. 16 —Were it not for the fact that King Leopold is charged at the court of Austria with having squandered in in trust for his only sister, Carlotta, Arch-duchess of Austria, and ex-Empress of Mexico, people would have long ago for-gotten all about this ill-fated princess, who has been secluded from the view, notonly of the public, but even of her Austrian, Eng-lish and French relatives, for a period of but thirty years.

A few months ago rumors were in circulation to the effect that the Empress was no longer icesne, and that she was merely kept under restraint by her brother in consequence of his dread that she would deroand an accounting of her fortune. So persistent were these reports that for for the first time since her incarceration in 1867 the King cassed a bulletin to be issued concerning the mental and physical condition of his unfortunate sister, whose existence from the brase when she became delirious from the time when she became delirio during the course of an intensely dramatic interview with the late Pope at Rome, has been an impenetrable mystery, giving rise to the most extraordinary stories

The latter were revived yesterday, when it was officially reported here that the ex-Empress was dangerously ill, and that her death was hourly expected. Since the strange and unexplained destruction by fire of the gloomy chateauin which she was rescued from the flames at the last moment and with the utmost difficulty, she ha-been imprisoned in the chateau of Bouthe park being surrounded by a lofty wall-Queen Victoria, who is her aunt; the late Duc d'Annale, who was her uncle; the Empress of Austria, who is her sister-in law, and her brother-in-law, the late Arch duke Charles Louis, frequently made endeavors to see her, but were invariably re fused permission to do so by King Leopeld a course which naturally excited much an mority against him, as well as district at

The death of the archduchess will lead o still further bitterness between King Leopold and the reigning house of Austria, for as widow of the second brother of Emperor Francis Joseph, Carlotta ha-been a hember of the Hapsburg family, and as such a large share of her vast property should revert at once doon her death to her husband's kinsfolk. Indeed, an unting ought to have been made with the Emperor of Austria at the time she insane, since he is one of his dead beetner's trustees. King Leopold has always avoided doing this, in spite of the protests that have reached him from Vienna about the matter. Indeed, at the present moment there is no royal personage in Europe who is in such had odor at the court of Austria, as King Leopold.

The ex-empress was an intensely ambiher sealousy of the superior rank of her sister-in-law, the Empress of Austria, that induced per to force her husband to accept of the Wishes of his brother and of hi mother. He only yielded when Emperor Napoleon III promised to assist him with troops and treasure. Napoleon was forced however, to withdraw his army, under Marshal Bareine, from Mexico, by a threst of war on the part of the United States, and thus deserted. Maximilian was driver

Mrs. Wedel was alone in the bounc, her husband being out on the farm at work. She was engaged with her household duties in the dining-room, when she heard a stealthy footstep. Turning, she saw a burly colored man, who had sneaked through the open kitchen door and was stealing upon her. The look in his eyes gave her an lukling of his purpose

The blood seemed to freeze in her veins but aid came from an unexpected source The house dog, an intelligent animal of the shepherd breed, had been dozing under the table. As the intruder took another step forward, he arose with a growl, and at Mrs. Wedel'scry, sprang at the colored man's

"Take him away, madam! Take him away!" yelled the thoroughly frightened man. "I only wanted something to eat!" Calling off the dog, who had torn the man's clothing, Mrs. Wedel allowed her would be assailant to escape.
